

THE GALLIOWS WILL HAVE ITS
HONEST AND LONG-WITHHELD
DUE, SOONER OR LATER.

On Sunday afternoon, a son of James Atkinson, who prints a small sheet called the "Advertiser," handed us a letter directed "News Office, Newport, R. I.," and said that "Mr. Newton wanted his father to hand that to us." We thought this a somewhat singular request, and that the channel was rather a strange one for the letter to come through, inasmuch as we were on good terms of friendship with all the Messrs. Newton, and as we had not exchanged any words with this James Atkinson for the last six months. We opened the letter, and found it to contain the marine intelligence of the whaling ship Congaree, of New Bedford, which came into this port Saturday morning, and which we published in yesterday's paper. Some of the officers of the ship were in our office Saturday, and we furnished them with files of late New York, Boston and New Bedford papers, free of expense, as we always do for fair men. In return for this, the Captain of the ship sent us his report, through some means it passed into the hands of one of the Messrs. Newton, who received it Saturday, and who handed it to this James Atkinson. This Atkinson opened it and appropriated the contents to his own use, by inserting it in his "Advertiser" Monday morning, and then sent it to us Sunday afternoon.

Now, this is a species of rascality, to call it by a mild name, which we shall not quietly submit to. What right, we ask, had this Atkinson to open a letter which was addressed to us, and to appropriate the contents to his own use, and then send us the letter some twenty-four hours after it should have reached us? We should like to have him explain his conduct, if he has any excuse to offer in palliation of his crime. If this man Atkinson is not aware of the fact, we can assure him that his crime is one which the law severely punishes, and if he is ever guilty of the like again, we will put the law in execution; and we will make Newport so hot for him that he will be as glad to make a hasty departure from it as he was to leave Lowell, a few months ago. We caution him to be very careful how he interferes with our affairs, or we will make serious trouble for him.

Since the above was written, Edward N. Newton, Esq., informs us that he received the ship-news from one of the Customs House Inspectors, Saturday evening, and after telegraphing it to New Bedford, he brought the letter to our office twice, a little after 5 o'clock, but found no one in. During the evening, this man Atkinson was in his store, and he showed it to him, Atkinson took it, and said that he would send it to us. He kept it until Sunday afternoon, as we have already stated, used it himself, and then sent it over to our office. This explanation does not help the matter, as far as Atkinson is concerned, and we only repeat our caution to him, with a little good advice to be more honest in future. He has conducted himself with tolerably becoming humility, until the commission of this flagrant offence; we should meet out to him a more proper punishment now, did not charity prompt us to exercise forbearance.

We are happy to announce that a very estimable and competent lady has been selected by the Committee who were appointed to obtain funds to educate a Female Physician, and that she will attend the lectures this winter at Boston. Our people are mainly indebted for this enterprise to our townsman, James R. Newton, Esq., who has been most indefatigable and liberal in his efforts in this behalf.

Important to Penitents.—Such has been the success of Willis's book on "People I have Met," that he has resolved to write a sequel including the rest of the human race—it is to be called "People I have not met." "Figaro" intends to write two small volumes on the same plan, entitled "People I don't wish to meet," and "People who had better not meet me," and probably a third to finish the series, under the title of "People who can't be met."

Fugitives. Accounts from Toronto, Canada, state that fugitive slaves are continually arriving there from the United States.

3 days later from Europe.

New York, Oct. 27.
The Pacific arrived about half-past 1 o'clock, this P. M., having sailed from Liverpool on the 15th. The Pacific had a very rough voyage. Among the passengers are Mr. L. Parodi, the celebrated contralto, whose fame has spread throughout the world, and who is engaged at the Astor Place Opera House.

The accounts from the seat of war in Schleswig, state that no further movements had taken place in either army. The Danes, however, were fortifying their position at every point, and they intend to remain entirely on the defensive.

We learn from Heese Cassel, that Gen. Haynau had suspended all the members of the upper Military Court, and as a last measure that Court decreed the immediate arrest of the General, but the Commander of Cassel would not venture to execute the decree.

Most of the officers of the garrison of Cassel had resigned. It is stated in a letter from Vienna, of the 10th inst., that a courier had arrived from London, bearing very important despatches from Lord Palmerston, relative to the affairs of Germany.

Two strong Austrian divisions have been ordered by the Diet, to advance as auxiliary troops on the frontiers of the Electorate of Hesse. The ministerial crisis still continues. Gen. Narvez has not tendered his resignation. The Queen mother is reported to have dissuaded him from such a step, and had promised to arrange affairs. Gen. Corvova has been dismissed from the post of Captain General of Madrid, and is to be replaced by Gen. Narvagany.

The accounts from Paris state that the Reds were very much alarmed in consequence of the cries of "Vive l'Empereur," at the review on Thursday, the 10th inst., lest a coup d'etat should be immediately made, and the committee in consequence remained in permanence during the night, and sent their emissaries to the various work shops to warn their friends to be in readiness for any event. The anticipated movement, however, did not take place, but there is to be a grand struggle between the President and National Assembly. There was a report in Paris at the last dates, that the committee of prerogative would pass a vote of censure on the Executive.

The French papers are filled with many political stories of various kinds, while the country at large remains tranquil.

There was exhibited on the 9th inst., at Lloyd's, in the underwriters' rooms, a piece of gold in its raw state weighing nearly twenty-seven pounds, for which the owner gave £750. It was obtained by his two sons in California.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.—James Groves, alias Somers, who was committed to Moyamensing prison Wednesday, for the murder of Mary Walsh, the apple girl, yesterday made a desperate attempt to commit suicide. It being customary to furnish the prisoners with razors for the purpose of shaving on certain days, Mr. Morrison, while supplying Groves with his dinner shortly after 12 o'clock yesterday, handed him a razor.

About a quarter of 1 o'clock Mr. Merkle, another keeper, accidentally opened the door of Groves' cell, and discovered the prisoner lying upon the floor weltering in his blood, which was flowing from a gash across his throat. He was almost insensible from the loss of blood.

On examination it was found that though the razor had nearly severed the wind-pipe, yet none of the principal blood-vessels were harmed. Though not necessarily fatal, the wound is considered very serious, and should inflammation ensue, may yet prove fatal.

Groves was as comfortable as the nature of his wound would admit, up to a late hour last evening.

His wife asserts, it is said, that he behaved very strangely the night before the murder, leading her to the belief that he was partially insane, and she was not therefore much astonished when informed of the horrid deed perpetrated by him.—Phil. Ledger.

A Dublin paper contains the following:—Yesterday, Mr. Conny removed to town, fell down and broke his neck, but happily he received no further injury.

THE HOUSE OF THE FUGITIVE SLAVE: IS HIS CASTLE.—It is understood that on inquiry of the Marshal, Judge Sprague has intimated that the process for the arrest of a fugitive slave is in the nature of civil process—that, in serving it, an officer will not be justified in breaking open the outer door of any dwelling-house—that every dwelling house is the castle of its occupants. This application of a familiar principle of the common law promises to give security to a certain extent to the unfortunate class of fugitives, chained as slaves. It must be borne in mind, however, that this protection is confined to the dwelling-house, or house where a person sleeps, and not to his place of business. It is also confined to the outer door. If this is left open, or if the Marshal is admitted within it, he may break open any inner door.

One of the most striking outbursts of Lord Chatham was where he pictured the security afforded by the English law to every person in his own house. "The winds of Heaven may enter it," said the impassioned orator, "every storm, every rain may penetrate it; but the King dare not, the King cannot."

On Saturday afternoon Deputy Sheriff Rugg arrested Willis H. Hawn, for Hughes, of Macon, Ga., and John Knight, a cabinet maker, as the sons of William Crafts, for slandering, they having charged said Crafts with having stolen his body and clothes. Hughes is the jailer of Macon, and it is stated, has a power of attorney, given by the person from whom Crafts and his wife escaped, for their recovery. Knight, who is a witness, has worked in the same shop with Crafts. The writs were issued by Justices John C. Park and Charles List, and are returnable at the January term of the Court of Common Pleas. The damages are laid at $10,000, and the required bail in that sum was given by the parties, and they were discharged.

An inflammatory hand bill, describing three persons, called "Slave Hunters," issued by the vigilance committee, was found posted throughout the city, yesterday morning. Charles C. Loring, Esq., and other eminent lawyers have volunteered their services as counsel for any colored person who may be brought before a commission under the act.—Boston Atlas.

In the Home Journal we find the following sketch of an occurrence which happened during Jenny's first visit to New York:—

During her first visit here, a Swede called, and sent up a note in his native language, which she did not understand, but when the young man came in, she at once remembered his countenance—an old playfellow when they were children together at school. She inquired his circumstances. He is a cabinet maker, residing with his wife and children at Brooklyn. The next day Jenny Lind drove over and made the wife of her school fellow a long visit. Again, the next day, just before leaving the city for Boston, she went again. The husband was not at home. She gave to the wife a note for him—he opened it on his return—it contained a sweetly worded request that he would allow her to give to his children a memento of their father's school friendship with Jenny Lind. The "memento" was a check for $10,000. This anecdote, we assure our readers, is correct in all particulars. The fashionables say it is impossible to get a visit from Jenny Lind. It reminds us—with the above circumstance—of a proverb we have somewhere seen: "The rich draw friends to them—the poor draw angels."

The Athens Banner publishes sundry letters from counties in Georgia, assuring the editor of the strength of the Union cause. Washington Irving relates that Abdallah, the father of Mahomet, was so beautiful that no less than two hundred Arab maidens died of a broken heart the night he was married to Amina.

Ludicrous.—A young itinerant preacher, in the constant habit of declaiming a great deal about the Creation, and especially about the first getting up of man, whenever he wished to display his native eloquence to good advantage, was one day holding forth to a mixed congregation in a country-school house. Becoming warm and enthusiastic as he proceeded, it was not long before he reached his favorite theme, and started off in something like the following style:—

"And when the world was created, and the beasts of the field and fowls of the air, and pronounced very good, God said, 'Let us make man.' And he formed man after his own likeness, and declared him the noblest of all the work of his hands. And he made woman also, and fashioned her in the exact image of man, with a variation—"

"Thank the lord for the variation!" shouted an old sinner, who sat over in the amen corner of the room, at this interesting juncture of the discourse.

The effect was perfectly ludicrous and irresistible. The preacher dropped the subject where he was interrupted, and was never heard to allude to it during a subsequent ministry of forty years.
